- AHCCM relies on a well for water, so it is important to conserve water so that the well doesn't run dry. Take short showers and make sure all water faucets are turned off completely. Please report any leaks to the Facilities Manager.

Consensual Relationship/Non-fraternization Policy

Staff and faculty members should always conduct themselves professionally in their dealings with co-workers, students, and others. Apple Hill expects its staff and faculty to exercise discretion and maturity in the manner in which they relate to each other at work. Professionalism within Apple Hill demands that those with authority not abuse, nor appear to abuse, the power with which they are entrusted. Romantic relationships that might be acceptable in other circumstances are inappropriate when they occur between any supervisor and subordinate, including student employees. These relationships are fundamentally asymmetric and can lead to abuses of power and other difficulties. Even when persons in positions of power are not supervising staff or faculty members, they should be aware that they might unexpectedly be placed in a position of such responsibility. Moreover, a romantic relationship between a supervisor and subordinate may affect the morale of co-workers by creating actual or perceived favoritism. Therefore, this policy prohibits supervisors from pursuing romantic relationships with subordinates they supervise recognizing that such relationships pose a professional conflict of interest that may make it difficult, if not impossible, to carry out their roles as supervisors.

In the event that such a relationship does develop, Apple Hill may alter the work responsibilities of the individuals in order to limit their professional contact. In addition, neither party to a romantic relationship will be allowed to participate in formal or informal supervision or performance appraisal of the other. In the context of a complaint of sexual harassment, there will be no assumption that the relationship was welcome.

Faculty members are expected to demonstrate maturity and good judgment in their relationships with students. An inherent imbalance of power exists between a faculty member and any student, even those whom the individual may not supervise. The appearance of favoritism or impropriety, real or imagined, can be damaging to an individual's reputation and to that of Apple Hill, and may make the faculty member vulnerable to sexual harassment charges. Romantic relationships between faculty members and students are strongly discouraged.
